BOOK CLUB EDITION

Maybe, perhaps,
you would like to have two.

I want you to have them.
I'll buy them for you . . .

. . . if you'll wait
till the First of October.

Everyone wants
a new skateboard TV.
Some people want two.
And some people want three.

Perhaps you want four?
Well, that's O.K. with me . . .
. . . if you'll wait
till the First of October.

Just say what you want.
You want pickles on trees?

Want to swing
through the air
on a flying trapeze?

Just say what you want,
and whatever you say,
you'll get
on October the First.

When October comes round,
you can play a hot tune
on your very expensive
new Jook-a-ma-Zoon!

I wish you could play it
in May or in June.

But May is too early.
And June is too soon.

When October gets here,
no work! And no school!

We'll build you a playhouse!
We'll build you a pool!

We would build them
right now,
but right now
is too cool.

We'll build you a playhouse!
We'll build you a pool!

We would build them
right now,
but right now
is too cool.

And we'll buy you
a wonderful Jeep-a-Fly kite!

We will!
If you'll wait
till the month is just right.

October's the best
because March is too dusty.
And April won't do
because April's too gusty.

What more do you want?

Do you and your dog
want more time to relax? . . .

Less time on your feet
and more time on your backs? . . .

More time in the air
and less time on the ground? . . .

You'll get it
as soon as October comes round.

Want to take a great trip?
Well, I know a great ship!

It sails
to Alaska,
Nebraska and Sweden,
making stops
in Ga-Dopps
and the Garden of Eden.

And it sails on the First of October!

Everyone has an October First list.

Write slowly now!

Don't break your wrist.

Don't break your wrist.

Then one of these days
the October First van will drive up to your house
just as fast as it can.

Whatever you want,
you will get in big bags,
and boxes and crates
with your name on the tags.

A boy with blonde hair, wearing a red and white striped shirt and blue pants, is running towards a large red firework. He is holding a lit matchstick to the fuse of the firework. The firework is a large red cylinder with a lit fuse. In the background, there are other fireworks exploding in the sky, creating bright yellow and orange streaks. The ground is blue.

You'll have rockets to shoot.

You'll have bombs you can burst . . .

A dog with brown fur and floppy ears is running towards a large red firework. The dog is holding a lit matchstick to the fuse of the firework. The firework is a large red cylinder with a lit fuse. In the background, there are other fireworks exploding in the sky, creating bright yellow and orange streaks. The ground is blue.

. . . on the wonderful night of

OCTOBER
THE FIRST!

On the First of October
you'll stay up all night,
drinking 66 six-packs
of Doodle Delight.

Whatever
you ask for,
I want you to get.

But October—
I'm sorry—
just isn't here yet.

SO

Be sure to be here.

Be sure you're in town
on October the First

... when the money comes down!

It doesn't come down much
in March
or November—
or even September . . .

. . . or in August,
October,
July
or December.

But EVERYTHING'S
YOURS . . .

. . . on the First
of October!

On the First
of October?

Thank you!
I'll remember.
